

A SHORT SESSION OF TOWN COUNCIL.

Routine of Last Meeting of the Month Rushed Through.

DATES ARE TO BE CHANGED

For Meetings Hereafter, the First and Third Tuesdays Being Selected. Session Last Night Without Incident.

Town Council held a short and harmonious session last evening. The regular meeting night was changed from the second and fourth Thursdays of the month to the first and third Tuesdays. "Butcher alley" was formally named "Park View" and Clerk Fixler slashed the minutes. That was the sum total of the session.

Clerk Fixler surprised the habitues of Council by omitting to read the reports presented at the previous meeting when going over his minutes. He did this with Council's hearty consent, it being a mere formality that always proves a bore. The Finance Committee had nothing to report except the matter of the Newmyer lien, brought up at a previous meeting, was in the hands of the Borough Solicitors for adjustment. A communication from Miss Bertha Whaley asked that she be exonerated from either the 1908 and 1909 taxes or the 1910 taxes, having no visible means of support. On motion of Friel Council exonerated her from taxes for all three years.

Under the head of streets, the Street Committee was directed to report on the necessity of a new bridge crossing Connell run at Hill street, in the Fourth Ward. Councilman Herzog resolution that Work & Clark be directed to pay the promised $150 toward paving Apple street to the Borough Solicitors was dropped as the paving is not complete. The parties have the check to pay this amount but wished instructions to whom it should be paid.

The Water Committee reported progress after the Police and Light Committees had reported nothing doing. Chairman G. W. Haddock of the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee was authorized to secure bids, not exceeding $50, for the City Hall lawn flowers.

Chairman Stoner of Public Safety had action on the new fire hose and election of a fireman deferred until the next meeting.

A petition of East Park residents asking a 110 foot extension of the sewer along Willow Street was referred to the Sewer Committee. A communication from Attorney D. M. Hertzog calling Council to task for removing fences from J. V. Starover's property in the "Courtbell" addition was referred to the Borough Solicitors and Engineer.

Councilman McFarland's report that the Leonard had been sold to the 18th street and Gibson avenue and his protest against putting in such a sewer resulted in protestations that Council knew nothing about the matter. Mr. Cornick, said Chairman Day of the Street Committee had the pipe taken there but they denied it. It was decided there had been a misunderstanding in the matter. J. T. Hertzog of the Sewer Committee said he looked over the ground and decided a sewer was not necessary.

The communication of Thomas S. Jones asking that the thoroughfare between Prospect and Taylor streets be named "Park View" resulted in favorable action.

Councilman Stoner brought up the change of meeting night and suggested the first and third Thursdays of the month. This suited all the members but Owen Burns, who proposed the first and third Tuesdays. This was accepted and decided upon. Residents along South Arch street, represented by Harry Hopson, asked that the Street Committee give a rehearing in regard to the grade for sidewalks. Friel was the only member to object to a meeting tomorrow evening. Reference to the new committee cards showed that Friel was not a member of that committee. The committee will meet between 7 and 8 o'clock. Council adjourned at 8:05.

BALDHEAD CLUB.

One is Being Organized in a Western City.

Perhaps this report is a joke, but one thing is certain a baldhead is no joke to the man who wears it.

A club of baldheads formed in every city of America would be a good thing if its members could be induced to parade bareheaded through the main streets of the city.

The writer would suggest that some of the members carry banners with inscriptions of such a character as to warn those who still have hair, that baldness is unnecessary; that in nearly every case it is the result of carelessness.

Banners inscribed as follows would be appropriate:

"We let the dandruff germ do it."
"The time to save the hair is when you have hair to save."

"When we were young, the dandruff germs worked every minute. They dug our hair out by the roots, and now we aren't in it."

The best banner of all would be this, "We didn't use Parolan Sage."

A. A. Clarke sells Parolan Sage for 50 cents a large bottle, so do live druggists everywhere. It is guaranteed to stop falling hair, itching scalp and to destroy dandruff germs and remove dandruff in two weeks, or money back.

Charleston Has $4,000 Fire. CHARLESTON, May 25.—(Special)—Two dwellings were destroyed by fire at noon, entailing a loss of $4,000. They were owned by John Fletcher and Gustave Bertram.

We can save you many regrets if you will let us aid you with expert advice and suggestions when you buy your new home outfit. We can teach you how to avoid the traps and pitfalls which yawn at the feet of inexperienced furniture purchasers. We can save you much money. We can arrange it so that you can pay for your goods in such trifling sums that no hardship can be worked upon you.

Before you spend a cent on furniture, make sure that you know your furniture dealer. Make sure that he does not carry any of that shoddy stuff that is piled upon the American markets to lure unwary buyers. Make sure that he marks all his prices in plain figures, not because he is compelled to but because he really thinks it the only honest way to do. Know all this before you spend a single penny.

The Aaron store is famous for its "daylight methods" of doing business; for the clean, dignified, courteous manner in which credit is extended to all who desire the accommodation. Everything here is open and aboveboard. Ask your friends how we treated them. Ask them if they are satisfied with our goods, our prices and our "daylight methods." Then let us show you "The Aaron Way" of fixing up a snug little home!

FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 26, 1911.

FREE WOOL AND THE ROCKWATER DEMOCRACY.

The Peerless One announces that he is still for Free Wool, but he is not for the Tariff. He would have the Tariff reduced gradually until the sheep industry can stand alone. That is pretty good Republican Tariff doctrine. The Pennsylvania wool and iron interests can stand together upon a platform like that. The iron and steel interests have never asked more than enough protection to protect their workmen against the lower wages and the lower plane of living of European workmen.

In this connection it might be remarked that the high cost of living which has been much complained of recently is due in some degree to the cost of high living and in some degree to the advanced prices of farm products. For many years this country produced more foodstuffs than it could dispose of. Twenty years ago the Kansas farmer burned his corn for fuel; he has since burned his mortgages. He was then glad to own a team of mules, he now owns an automobile. He no longer burns his corn, but he sometimes burns his money. The depleted and rejected railroads have pestiferously penetrated the heart of the farming country. With their aid the products of the farm are promptly gathered together and sent to distant markets where they find ready sale at high prices because Europe is always ready to buy the surplus on the same terms.

In the good old Democratic times, when the western farms were covered with mortgages, the farmer was an ardent advocate of Free Trade. He was possessed with the idea that the Tariff was invented for the sake and only purpose of protecting the Pennsylvania manufacturer, and that its tax fell heavily upon his debt-burdened shoulders. But a change has come over his spirit. He has become a convert to Protection. He strenuously objects to Reciprocity with Canada because he thinks he sees in it some measure of Free Trade with that country which may have the effect of lowering the prices of his products. The farmer is wise to believe in Protection, but his fear of Canadian Reciprocity is not well founded. He forgets that Canada also sends all its surplus grain to Europe, and that its facilities for making shipment are practically as good as our own. Reciprocity will in no wise interfere with or curtail the trade of either country in farm products, since there is a constant and steady demand for all that is produced. Under Reciprocity there will be some little trading across the border, but that will be a matter of local convenience and interest, and it will not affect the disposition of crop surplus.

The Peerless One is not striking a popular chord with the farmers when he advocates Free Wool, hence his present hedging. In his younger, blither, more imaginative and more hopeful period, he distained advice and brooked not opposition. He sublimely clung to his discredited political theories. He was joined to his idols and could not be sundered from them. The Democratic party was also joined to him and would not be sundered. The blind led the blind and all were quadratically ditched with a persistence that was painfully monotonous to the intelligent members of the decadent and decaying party.

Democratic Tariff revisions have hitherto been horizontal. Dollar bills has sprung a new issue the first in many years. He proposes to make them progressively discriminating; in other words, he wants to hold on to the Free Trade theory, but in practice to apply it with political discretion. It is more than ever apparent that the Peerless One is playing to the Green county galleries. Out of the wreck of platform matter and the ruin of political worlds, the Rockwater Democracy of Green county must and shall be saved.

The Unofficial Organ persists in doing its worst with political matter. It is more than ever apparent that the Peerless One is playing to the Green county galleries. Out of the wreck of platform matter and the ruin of political worlds, the Rockwater Democracy of Green county must and shall be saved.

LET'S TALK IT OVER.

THE PITTSBURGH DISTRICT ONLY DEMANDS ITS OWN.

The attorneys for the defense in the railroad rate hearings at Washington are trying hard to make it appear that the proceedings are instigated for the purpose of advancing the prices of Pittsburgh coal lands and properties. That will probably be an effect, but it will be incidental. The railroads cannot hide behind an incident. They must face the issue. The issue is whether or not they are practicing discrimination.

If the enhancement of Pittsburgh coal land values is one of the collateral results of equitable rate revision it is also an equitable effect. The railroads have no more right to depress coal land values than they have to discriminate in coal freights.

The Pittsburgh district merely demands its own.

THE RUMORED CUT IN STEEL PRICES.

The report that the independent steel interests are about to cut the prices of certain of their products may not be welcome news to the steel interests, but it will cause no apprehension in the iron and coke circles.

Reductions in steel will tend to stimulate buying, and an increased steel output means an increased demand for pig iron, which in turn will mean an increased demand for coke.

Just now coke and pig iron prices are down and steel prices are up. It steel comes down, coke and pig may come up a trifle. In that event conditions will be more equitable.

Pittsburgh gets the Plan and the Code, both somewhat modified to be sure, but plainly recognizable by their parents. The Plan is without the fiscal but the fiscal will probably be heard within the coming two years.

The Irwin strike district seems to need protection against human beasts as well as aid and comfort for the families of mixed men.

The bicycle shows signs of coming back. Trolley-jumping is almost as unhealthy as train jumping.

A newspaper has many heads and sometimes they get misplaced. The weather has been right good to us for a couple of days but it is warning us again.

Bond-buyers hover around Connelville. Fayette's first City must still be a good thing.

The West Side is right on the firing line. Lost boys who travel in a circle are hard to find.

The railroads change officers, but they go on forever. Americans sometimes elope with their brides but foreigners usually elope with the old man's money.

The Pittsburgh Councils are being whitewashed preparatory to turning them out to grass. Horses run away, but autos break down.

John Doe is probably too tired to talk. The Trotter lad who got on a baseball bat felt badly about it right away. Older boys don't usually suffer until the next morning.

The Western Maryland is making fast time on its bridges and it will no doubt make fast time on them after they are completed. The Water Committee will have plenty of time to consider the Purchase argument.

SCOTSDALE.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, May 26.—Mrs. L. H. Lettsell, President, and Mrs. Albert Keister, Recording and Corresponding Secretary of the Executive Committee of the Allegheny Branch of the Woman's Missionary Society, are at Coalport this week. They are attending the thirty-third annual session of the organization, which began on Tuesday and will close today. Last evening Mrs. Lettsell was on the program for the opening address on the subject "The Healing Waters." Mrs. Keister's report shows that the association had in 1910 a membership of 1,045 and offerings amounting to $3,492.33, and in 1911 a membership of 2,237 and offerings of $4,257.03.

Choral Society Concert.
The Scottdale Choral Society have arranged to give a concert at the opera house on Thursday evening, June 3. This is a local musical organization which meets in the High School study hall, and which recently gave a fine piano to the school. The concert is for the purpose of raising money to pay for the piano. The Choral Society is in no sense a money-making organization, as all they gain by any entertainment goes for the purchase of music or for general welfare. A special did program is being arranged and the chorus drilled under W. V. Whiteman is a large and able group of singers, while some splendid solos are planned for.

Health Officer Busy.
Health Officer Frank P. Goshorn is busy this week with the start of his spring inspection of cellars, drains, etc., over the town. The town in general has found in average good condition. The whitewashing of all cellars, after they have been thoroughly cleaned and aired is advised, while alleys and back yards should be cleaned up of the debris that gathers during the winter season, but which is inimical to the health and safety of the neighborhood. One of the most peculiar things is that there are no flies as yet. In spite of many days of hot weather, in fact the hottest for this time of the year, there are no flies reported around this neighborhood. In fact other towns are giving voice to the same wonderment.

Holiday Closing Time.
Memorial Day being a legal holiday all the banks will be closed. The schools will meet early and the disbursement for the term. The Public Library will be closed that day, and also at 6 o'clock on Wednesday evening when Commencement takes place. The postoffice will be open until 10:30 Tuesday morning and closed the balance of the day. There will be one morning delivery and collection and mails will be received and dispatched as usual. Distribution of freight trains on the P. R. R. will be annulled that day and no freight will be received or delivered at the Scottdale station that day. Most of the business places will be closed and the people will take a holiday.

A Peculiar Accident.
Edgar Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kelly, of Grant township, was the victim of a painful and peculiar accident yesterday. He was wearing a pair of trousers and held the hot iron under an open spit for a moment to cool the iron. The water upon the hot iron generated into steam that scalded his left hand in a fearful manner, bringing the blood out to the surface. A doctor who happened to be handling up the hand and the boy who is about 14 was able to go to school again. This is a bad week for accidents to school boys as the examinations are now on.

A HEAVY VERDICT

Against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for Alleged Discrimination. PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—(Special.)—A jury in the United States Circuit Court here yesterday returned a verdict of $25,000 against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in a suit instituted by seven coal mining companies of Western Pennsylvania to recover damages for alleged discrimination against them in favor of other coal companies. Originally 11 coal companies were plaintiffs and the total claim was for more than $1,000,000. Judge Holland, before whom the case was tried, ruled, however, that only those concerns who could prove that their freight charges were paid by them and not by the consignees, had legal standing. This eliminated four of the companies and reduced the total claims to $165,000. The Carbon Coal & Coke Company is given $6,000 and the remainder of the damages is divided among the John Langdon Coal Company, the Mt. Equity Coal & Coke Company, E. F. Elshelberger & Company, H. C. D. Read and W. H. Sweet.

CHAPTER II

THE MYSTERIOUS ATTACK.

HOWLAND was glad for a time there was an excuse for his silence. It began to dawn on him that this was an extraordinary adventure for a man on whose shoulders rested the responsibilities of one of the greatest engineering tasks on the continent and who was due to take a train for the seat of his operations at 8 o'clock in the morning.

He looked down at his companion, saw the sheen of her hair as it rippled out from under her fur turban, studied the soft contour of her cheek and chin without himself being observed and noticed incidentally that the top of the bewitching head beside him came just about to a level with the clear glass which he was smoking. He wondered if he were making a fool of himself.

Where the river ferry was half drawn up on the shore, its stern frozen in the ice, he paused and looked down at the girl in quiet surprise. She nodded, smiling, and motioned across the river.

"It was over there tonight," said Howland aloud. "Didn't see any houses and heard nothing but wolves. Is that where we're going?"

Her white teeth gleamed at him, and he was conscious of a warm pressure against his arm as the girl signalled that they were to cross. His perplexity increased. On the farther shore the forest came down to the river's edge in a black wall of spruce and balsam. Beyond that edge of the wilderness he knew that no part of Prince Albert intruded. It was possible that across from them was a squatter cabin, and yet if that was so, and this girl was going to it why had she told him that she was a stranger in the town?

And why had she come to him for the assistance she promised to request of him instead of seeking it of those whom she knew?

"You told me you were a stranger," he said. "You seem pretty well acquainted over here. Where are you going?"

This time she responded with an emphatic negative shake of her head, at the same time pointing with her free hand to the well defined trail that wound up from the ferry landing into the forest. Earlier in the day Howland had been told that this was the Great North trail that led into the wilderness beyond the Saskatchewan.

Two days before the factor from Lac Dain, the Chippewyan and the Cree had come in over it. Its hard crust bore the marks of the sledges of Jean Croisset and the men from the Lac in Rouge country. Since the big snow, which had fallen four feet deep ten days before, a forest man had now and then used this trail on his way down to the edge of civilization, but none from Prince Albert had traveled it in the other direction.

Howland had been told this at the hotel, and he begged his attention in candid bewilderment as she strove down into the girl's face. She seemed to understand his thoughts, and again her mouth rounded itself into that bewitching red O, which gave to her face an expression of tender entreaty, of pathetic grief that the soft lips were powerless to voice the words which she wished to speak. Then suddenly she darted a few steps from Howland and with the toe of her shoe formed a single word in the surface of the snow. She rested her hand lightly on Howland's shoulder as he bent over to make it out in the elusive twilight.

"Camp," he cried, straightening himself. "Do you mean to say you're camping out here?"

She nodded again and again, delighted that he understood her. There was something so childishly sweet in her face, in the glances of her eyes, that Howland stretched out both his hands to her, laughing aloud. "You're exclaiming. 'You, camping out here!'"

With a quick little movement she came to him, still laughing with her eyes and lips, and for an instant he held both her hands tight in his own. Her lovely face was dangerously near to him. He felt the touch of her breath on his face; for an instant caught the sweet scent of her hair. Never had he seen eyes like those that glowed up at him softly, filled with the gentle starlight; never in his life had he dreamed of a face like this, so near to him that it sent the blood leaping through his veins in strange excitement. He held the hands tighter, and the movement drew the girl closer to him until for no more than a breath he felt her against his breast. In that moment he forgot all sense of time and place; forgot his old self—Jack Howland—practical, unromantic, master builder of railroads; forgot everything but the presence of the girl, the warm pressure against his breast, the lure of the great brown eyes that had come so unexpectedly into his life. In another moment he had recovered himself. He drew a step back, freeing the girl's hands.

"Beg your pardon," he said softly. His cheeks burned hotly at what he had done, and, turning squarely about, he strode up the trail. He had not taken a dozen paces when far ahead of him he saw the red glow of a fire thru a hand caught his arm, clutching at it almost fiercely, and he turned to meet the girl's face, white now with a strange terror.

"What is it?" he cried. "Tell me!" He caught her hand again, startled by the look in her eyes. But he pulled himself away. A dozen feet behind her in the black shadows of the forest trees something took shape and movement. In a flash Howland saw a huge form leap from the gloom and caught the gleam of an uplifted knife.

There was no time for him to leap aside, no time for him to reach for the revolver which he carried in his pocket. In such a crisis one's actions are involuntary, uncalculated, as if life, hovering by a thread, preserved itself in its own manner and without thought or reasoning on the part of the creature it animated.

For an instant Howland neither thought nor reasoned. Had he done so he would probably have met his mysterious assailant, pitting his naked fist against the knife. But the very misapprehension of his existence, which is self preservation, called on him to do otherwise. Before the startled cry on his lips found utterance he flung himself face downward in the snow. The move saved him, and as the other stumbled over his body, pitching headlong into the trail, he snatched forth his revolver. Before he could fire there came a roar like that of a beast from behind and a terrific blow fell on his head. Under the weight of a second assailant he was crushed to the snow, his pistol slipped from his grasp and two great hands choked a despairing cry from his throat. He saw a face over him, distorted with passion, a huge necky and hand like angry gorilla. He struggled to free his pinned arms, to wrench off the death grip at his throat, but his efforts were like those of a child against a giant.

In a last terrible attempt he drew up his knees, inch by inch under the weight of his enemy. It was his only chance, his only hope. He was fast, the fingers about his throat sinking like hot iron into his flesh and the breath slipping from his body, he remembered this murderous knee punch taught to him by the rough fighters of the island seas, and with all the life that remained in him he sent it crashing into the other's abdomen.

It was a moment before he knew that it had been successful, before the arm cleared from his chest and the jaw his assailant groveling in the snow. He rose to his feet, dazed and staggering from the effect of the blow on his head and the murderous grip at his throat. He felt a hot stab of pain in the trail he saw indistinctly the twisted limbs of his enemy. It was his only chance, his only hope. Rouge country a hundred miles north; goes back today. No apparent reason for his coming, none for his going that I can see.

"Do you know anything about him?" asked Howland a little eagerly.

"No. He comes in about once or twice a year."

COMMENCEMENT IN DUNBAR BOROUGH.

Large Audience Hears Program of the Graduating Class

LARGE CLASS GET DIPLOMAS

Special to The Courier.

DUNBAR, May 26.—(Pittsburgh Press.) The annual commencement exercises of the Dunbar Borough High School were held at the Dunbar Methodist Episcopal Church this evening.

The church presented a most beautiful appearance, the auditorium being draped with garlands of blue and gold, the colors of the Dunbar High School.

The program of the evening was most interesting, and the audience was well entertained. The exercises were presided over by Rev. T. M. Gladden, after which the Dunbar High School orchestra played the national anthem.

The graduates of the class of 1911 were then called to the front of the church, and each received a diploma from the hands of the principal, Mr. J. H. Gladden.

The class of 1911 consisted of 15 students, and the principal congratulated them on their successful completion of their course.

The exercises closed with a prayer by Rev. T. M. Gladden, and the singing of the hymn, "Rock of Ages," by the Dunbar High School choir.

The Dunbar High School is one of the best schools in the borough, and the graduates of the class of 1911 are well qualified for the work ahead of them.

The Dunbar High School is a member of the Pennsylvania State Association of Schools, and the Dunbar High School is a member of the National Association of Schools.

BANKRUPT SALE, 109 N. PITTSBURG ST.

NEXT DOOR ROYAL HOTEL, CONNELLSVILLE, PA.

Look for the Sign of the Bankrupt Sale

Some of the paths lead at once into the history of this republic like the path of the just as the shining light shined more and more into the world, and though the road descended and the floods came and the winds blew, this nation will stand for it is founded upon a rock, and this sturdy emblem which is the ensign of Washington, when he delivered the independence which was born by Jackson when he preserved the liberty of the Union. This banner which has survived the civil strife from which Lincoln emerged bearing in one hand the remnant of the federal government and in the other the proclamation of a nation, this banner that has waves thought in silent majesty, is dedicated to its mission of liberty, equality, enlightenment and progress, the Mission of America today.

Many Kimball then gave a reading on the "Tragic Story of Burns," after which Kierle's orchestra rendered selections, after which the class will and prophecy was read by Marie Harriet and Ruth Hay. Then in about one dozen pictures William Jones, cartoonist of the class displayed the different pictures of several members of the class and also pictures of the future. After which Miss Brooke delivered the address with one of her beautiful soprano solos. Then Miss Neuch delivered a reading with much force, "The Pilot's Story," then with much elation Miss Dwyer, donor of the class, told the future of each one and presented each graduate with a little token of what a life in the future they expect to live. The valedictory "The Future of America," delivered the closing address of the evening. Give to the World the Best You Have and the Best Will Come Back to You. In part was the solemn thought that this be the last time our dear old class shall meet, unbroken, still answering heart. We have lived our school life, and now we must each take his path alone and push on his journey.

Many Kimball then gave a reading on the "Tragic Story of Burns," after which Kierle's orchestra rendered selections, after which the class will and prophecy was read by Marie Harriet and Ruth Hay. Then in about one dozen pictures William Jones, cartoonist of the class displayed the different pictures of several members of the class and also pictures of the future. After which Miss Brooke delivered the address with one of her beautiful soprano solos. Then Miss Neuch delivered a reading with much force, "The Pilot's Story," then with much elation Miss Dwyer, donor of the class, told the future of each one and presented each graduate with a little token of what a life in the future they expect to live. The valedictory "The Future of America," delivered the closing address of the evening. Give to the World the Best You Have and the Best Will Come Back to You. WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many anxiously modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distressful ailments are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases. It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't tell your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.—take the advice received and be well.

ATTORNEYS SHOW THEIR HAND

In Attempt to Show That Method of
John W. Boleau Is to Increase
Values—Hearings in Coal Case May Be Held in Pittsburgh.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—John W. Boleau, chief complainant before the Interstate Commerce Commission in the case attacking the 35-cent rate on coal from the Pittsburgh district to the lake ports, was cross-examined at length yesterday by Assistant Solicitor O. E. Butterfield, of the New York Central line, which control the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie road. Mr. Boleau attempted to show that the object of the complaint was to increase the selling price of coal lands in the Pittsburgh district and other Pennsylvania fields and had been primarily filed for that purpose. Mr. Boleau denied this repeatedly, but admitted an increase of one cent a ton on coal in favor of the Pittsburgh district meant an increase in the value of coal land of $100 per acre.

Mr. Boleau declared that the Pittsburgh district was entitled to a rate as low as 20 cents a ton to the lake. That was the rate the commission should prescribe. Mr. Butterfield maintained that the motive behind the complaint was to put certain West Virginia coal operators out of business and hand their markets over to Pittsburgh operators.

When Mr. Boleau took the stand for cross-examination after a brief examination by Wade Ellis, his own attorney, he denied that he appeared in the proceeding only for J. V. Thompson, and intimated that there were attorneys or more interested in the proceeding.

Mr. Butterfield then directed his efforts to ascertain who helped formulate the complaint and who appeared that it had been drawn up by Wade Ellis, and that Howard D. Mannington, of Cleveland, had been consulted by Mr. Ellis and Mr. Boleau.

"Do you know," asked Mr. Butterfield, "that Mr. Mannington is said in public prints to be the head and front of the whole attack upon the railroads in the State of Ohio and in the Central West generally, with headquarters at Columbus?"

"I do not," replied Mr. Boleau. "Did you not employ him knowing him to be the publisher of the Ohio Coal Operator, in which he attacked the railroads?"

"I did not," replied Mr. Boleau. "Mr. Ellis objected to these questions but Mr. Butterfield contended that the carriers were entitled to show that Mr. Mannington was the 'prime instigator' of attacks on the carriers to get a reduction of lake rates on coal."

Referring to a declaration of the Interstate Commerce Commission in which the statement was made that 10 cents a ton profit on coal was considered a fair profit, Mr. Butterfield asked Mr. Boleau if he did not agree with this statement.

"I do not think so. It might be applicable in some cases," he added, "but there ought to be a profit of 21 cents a ton to cover interest on investment, etc."

Would have to surrender. Mr. Butterfield maintained that the adverse decision by Mr. Boleau meant that certain coal fields in West Virginia would have to surrender their markets to Pittsburgh operators. Mr. Boleau emphatically denied this, stating that the coal operators in the Pittsburgh district wanted the rate fixed on lake coal from the Pittsburgh district cut out reference to the rate from West Virginia.

"But you want to change the differential between West Virginia and Pittsburgh coal so that it will be 40 or 50 cents a ton," said Mr. Butterfield.

"Yes," admitted Mr. Boleau. "Your position seems somewhat inconsistent. What do you really want to accomplish by your complaint?"

"I want the rate," said Mr. Boleau, "in proportion to service rendered compared with rates accorded the other fields."

"What you want then is an advantage over the West Virginia field which you do not now possess?"

"Yes," said Mr. Boleau, "which we deserve owing to our proximity to the market."

At this juncture Mr. Boleau declared that no operator in the Pittsburgh field had made any profit for five years, owing to the inroads on their markets by West Virginia coal. He said that three ought to be a reasonable rate and he pointed to the fact that the West Virginia roads were making money on carrying coal to the lake ports.

Mr. Boleau read many extracts from a "prospective" on Southwestern Pennsylvania coal fields, compiled by Mr. Boleau in 1907. This prospectus drew attention to the advantages of investment in Pennsylvania coal lands.

When Pittsburgh had advantage. The witness admitted that the prospectus declared that the Pittsburgh district had an advantage of 23 cents a ton over other fields in 1907.

"You say," Mr. Boleau continued, "Mr. Butterfield 'that every cent advantage in the rate means an additional value to the coal land in the Pittsburgh district of $100 per acre'?"

"Yes," said Mr. Boleau, "when the coal is mined."

But you are proposing to the commission that to add to that 23 cents advantage 34 cents more so that it was brought about, with regard to the Pennsylvania field of 61 cents a ton or $1,100 an acre, that is at present conditions of 23 cents advantage it amounts to $220 an acre and with the added 34 cents the advantage to the Pittsburgh district would be $410 an acre."

Mr. Boleau admitted this, but said that the rate of 44 cents per ton from the Pittsburgh district to the lake ports with a haul of about 170 miles as against the rate of approximately 37 cents per ton to 112 per ton to the West Virginia field, on an average haul of 100 miles, on a back haul for the West Virginia carriers was basically wrong and should be adjusted to some equitable per ton per mile rate.

Mr. Butterfield asked the witness if the carriers were not now trying to adjust things on an equitable basis when they offer to increase the rate from West Virginia about 3 cents to the Pittsburgh district to the amount of $223 per acre. Mr. Boleau did not

FOREST FIRES

In Vicinity of Markleton Have Done Much Damage.

The last two weeks were strenuous ones for James W. Tannehill, who is Fire Warden for the section between Confluence and Rockwood, as fire has been raging in the woods during most of the time and the utmost efforts of the warden and those assisting him could not prevent a lot of damage being done.

Among the many places that suffered severely was a tract of timber land located on the mountains not far from Markleton, on which over 2,000 acres of fine timber was devastated by the fire. North of Drakestown there were also many forest fires.
